Webber named to Professional Remodeler Magazine's 40 under 40

Watkinsville, Georgia (July 10, 2014) — Jessica Webber, owner of Webber Development and Construction, has been recognized as one of the “40 Under 40” by Professional Remodeler magazine. Professional Remodeler, the leading business resource for the remodeling and home improvement market, announced its 40 Under 40 Class of 2014 in its July issue and named Jessica Webber of Webber Development and Construction as one of the remodeling industry’s rising stars.

“It is truly an honor to be recognized. But the success of our company is really attributed to our outstanding team and clients,” says Webber.

Webber’s construction career began with her work in their family business, Webber Coleman Woodworks, in 2001. Through a desire for diversification, Jessica and Dan Webber, her dad, founded Webber Development and Construction in 2005 with a focus on turnkey kitchen and bath remodeling.

The 2014 class was chosen from more than 100 applicants and joins the previous 120 recipients of the 40 Under 40 franchise that Professional Remodeler launched in 2011. This distinguished class is diverse in its professional and personal interests, along with its commitment to service in professional societies and philanthropic organizations.

These next-generation remodeling leaders are owners, kitchen and bath designers, directors, presidents and vice presidents in remodeling businesses that range from large, multi-million-dollar firms to smaller operations with annual revenues in the neighborhood of $500,000.

“We noted some incredible advances in how the 40 Under 40 professionals manage their business,” says Professional Remodeler Editorial Director/Publisher Patrick O’Toole. “Specifically, the role of technology, design software and the ability to manage a job site remotely have resulted in viewing photos, 4D images, and sales presentations with the flick of a finger on a tablet. These 40 professionals not only share the desire to be successful, they also want to build a solid foundation for the future of the remodeling industry.”
